Subscription and Retail

- Single issue: € 42.90 (Print only)

- Subscription price (annually), Print incl. Online or E-Only:
  - Institutions: € 207
  - Individuals: € 104.90

  We allow a student discount of 25% on the subscription price for individuals (on presentation of student ID)

- Download of single articles:
  https://elibrary.duncker-humblot.com/journals/schm

- More information about subscription and online-version:
  www.duncker-humblot.de/jce
  or verkauf_zeitschriften@duncker-humblot.de

You can place your order at your local bookstore or directly via Duncker & Humblot.

www.duncker-humblot.de
On the Journal

Economics is social science. This central idea guiding Journal of Contextual Economics – Schmollers Jahrbuch since its founding in 1871 has lost none of its relevance. Ever more scholars have discovered that an »isolating« economics that removes economic processes from their social, historical, ethical, and ecological contexts in the interest of applying certain formal methods runs the danger of missing important aspects of economic reality. In philosophy, the humanities, and the social sciences, contextualism has grown in importance over the last several years, a core postulate of which is that a fuller understanding of human thought and action requires a grasp of the context in which they are embedded. In line with its original intention, the main objective of Journal of Contextual Economics – Schmollers Jahrbuch is to offer such newer research a forum in which economic life is set in relation to its social and physical environment. Institutional approaches appear to be particularly relevant to this purpose, nevertheless quantitative and qualitative methods are equally welcome. We also wish to solicit contributions that devote themselves to questions of long-term human development and societal change, including those from the perspective of economic history and the history of economic thought. Considering social and normative questions is an important thematic focus in the long tradition of this journal.

»Lessons for Liberalism in the 21st Century from the Colloque Walter Lippmann«

Edited by Karen Horn, Stefan Kolev, Sandra J. Peart, and David M. Levy

Peter J. Boettke and Rosolino Candela
Liberalism in Crisis and the Promise of a Reconstructed Liberalism

Erwin Dekker
Is There a Neoliberal Agenda of Emancipation?

Arnaud Diemer
The Lippmann Colloquium: How to Rebuild the Foundations of Liberalism?

Malte Dold and Tim Krieger
The »New« Crisis of the Liberal Order: Populism, Socioeconomic Imbalances, and the Response of Contemporary Ordoliberalism

Nils Karlson
Liberalism and the Quest for Meaning and Community

Amichai Magen
Liberal Order in the Twenty-First Century: Searching for Eunomia Once Again

Deirdre McCloskey
Fukuyama Was Correct: Liberalism is the Telos of History

Lars Peder Nordbakken
Liberalism beyond Hayek: On the Renewal of Liberalism and the Institutional Infrastructure of Freedom

Mikayla Novak
Climate Change: What Should Liberals Do?

Eric Schliesser
Lippmann. Prophet of Liberalism and the Road Not Taken

Jan Schnellenbach
Revisiting the Tension Between Classical Liberalism and the Welfare State

Richard Sturn
Endogenous Power and Crises of the Liberal Order

Richard E. Wagner
Economic Theory and »the Social Question« Some Dialectics regarding the Work-Dependency Relationship

Gerhard Wegner
Overcoming Economic Nationalism: The »Invisible Hand«- Solution of the European Union
Economics is social science. This central idea guiding Journal of Contextual Economics – Schmollers Jahrbuch since its founding in 1871 has lost none of its relevance. Ever more scholars have discovered that an »isolating« economics that removes economic processes from their social, historical, ethical, and ecological contexts in the interest of applying certain formal methods runs the danger of missing important aspects of economic reality. In philosophy, the humanities, and the social sciences, contextualism has grown in importance over the last several years, a core postulate of which is that a fuller understanding of human thought and action requires a grasp of the context in which they are embedded. In line with its original intention, the main objective of Journal of Contextual Economics – Schmollers Jahrbuch is to offer such newer research a forum in which economic life is set in relation to its social and physical environment. Institutional approaches appear to be particularly relevant to this purpose, nevertheless quantitative and qualitative methods are equally welcome. We also wish to solicit contributions that devote themselves to questions of long-term human development and societal change, including those from the perspective of economic history and the history of economic thought. Considering social and normative questions is an important thematic focus in the long tradition of this journal.

»… Exact science must always tolerate a different explanation of things as its equal, one shaped by an image of the whole and premised on the value of the past that seeks to understand and interpret individual phenomena in their context and organize the material through reflective judgements according to a general point of view. «

Gustav Schmoller, »On the Purpose and Aims of the Journal« (1881)
Subscription and Retail

- Single issue: € 42.90 (Print only)
- Subscription price (annually), Print incl. Online or E-Only:
  Institutions: € 207
  Individuals: € 104.90

We allow a student discount of 25% on the subscription price for individuals (on presentation of student ID)

- Download of single articles:
  https://elibrary.duncker-humblot.com/journals/schm

- More information about subscription and online-version:
  www.duncker-humblot.de/jce
  or
  verkauf_zeitschriften@duncker-humblot.de

You can place your order at your local bookstore or directly via Duncker & Humblot.

www.duncker-humblot.de